Experience is the death of the perception of that incommunicable mystery which is referred to as 'love', 'reality', 'existence', 'eternal', 'divine', 'bliss', 'sacredness', 'the unnamable' and so on.

Perhaps you may come upon that mystery if you understand and practice what was made known to you through the human body called Lahiri Mahasaya and which is still being told by his blood cells and bone marrow throughout the world, year in and year out.

You must discover it by and for yourself. Nobody can reveal this mystery to you, and nothing can destroy it.
